Microneedling

Sterile serum

Get long-term results without surgery thanks to this innovative treatment derived from medical mesotherapy. This technique stimulates cellular renewal through dermal micro-perforation, adding a serum (sterile cocktail) without preservatives, providing a perfect complement to activate cellular renewal.

Photo-rejuvenation

IPL (Intense Pulsed Light) can be used to treat various skin conditions, including:

Lumecca
By InMode

Acne: Photo-rejuvenation can be used to treat mild to moderate acne by targeting the bacteria responsible for inflammation and reducing sebum production.

Acne scars: Le Acne Scars: Photo-rejuvenation can also help diminish the appearance of scars by promoting skin regeneration and improving texture.

Redness and Visible Blood Vessels: The pulsed light targets blood vessels and redness, helping to reduce their appearance and improve skin uniformity.

Brown Spots and Pigment Spots: Photo-rejuvenation can help remove these marks caused by sun exposure, aging, or other factors by targeting the pigments responsible for their appearance.

Minor Pigmented Lesions: The treatment can also be effective for minor pigmentation issues such as freckles and lentigo.

Minor Vascular Lesions: IPL can help reduce the appearance of small visible blood vessels on the skin, such as those associated with rosacea.

Skin Firmness: The treatment can stimulate collagen production, a protein that helps maintain skin firmness and elasticity, potentially improving the overall appearance of the skin.

Uneven Skin Texture: Photo-rejuvenation can help improve skin texture by reducing the appearance of enlarged pores, fine lines, and superficial wrinkles.

Hyperpigmentation: The treatment can help lighten areas of the skin with excessive pigmentation, such as age or sunspots.

Rosacea and Telangiectasia: Pulsed light can help reduce the appearance of dilated and visible blood vessels associated with rosacea, rosacea, and telangiectasia, skin conditions characterized by redness and visible blood vessels. Prix pour 3 traitements
